

Copyright

Written by Webray
Wednesday, 26 November 2003
Last Updated Sunday, 04 December 2005

Copyright Information

General

As with most sites on the web these days Webraydian is no different. The content found on Webraydian is owned by the provider or creator of that content and not you! With that said, if you need to copy or reproduce content from Webraydian it should be noted that written or verbal permission is required. Unless stated otherwise.

There are pieces of information, downloads and/or images made available to Guests and Members of this site. This type of content is intended to share, although share is a loose term that governs content; I believe you know what that means. But let me help you anyway! That means you may take that information from Webraydian for your personal use or in some cases to redistribute, but you cannot claim as your own, sell or make money from (unless you share the profits) or remove any copyright information (if included) from whatever you may take. Assume someone owns it if you didn't create it! You would expect no less than that of your own property. Wouldn't you?

Contributing Authors

This site may at times provide content that authors other than that of Webraydian have produced. This content is the property of said author and also of this web site "Webraydian.com" (unless otherwise stated). Permission to reproduce content is required at all times unless the author of that content gives permission in writing somewhere at the bottom of said content.

Reproducing Content

No content on this site (Webraydian) may be reproduced as content for your site, online or offline, on CDROMs or any other form, with the intent to make money. However, if you have an idea that you feel would be of use to the owner/webmaster of Webraydian, then please let me know.

In general, content on this site may be reproduced with the owner's permission or if the owner has provided a tag-line at the bottom of his/her article or content that permits reproduction. Even if this goes against the paragraph above, claiming content cannot be reproduced with intent to make money!

Submitted Content

All content that is submitted to Webraydian becomes in part the property of Webraydian and may be used by Webraydian for whatever purpose the owner/webmaster of this site may have a need for. This may include publishing in eZines, eBooks, or other forms of media, online or offline, with or without the intent to make money, and with or without any additional permission from the original author. By submitting content to Webraydian you agree to allow the owner/webmaster this privilege. You may however choose to revoke (in writing) that privilege at anytime.

End Notes

Contents of this notice may and probably will change in the future. Any changes made to this Copyright Notice can be made without any further notice to you (the User).

Thanks,
Webraydian